II. EXERCISE No. 2: APPROPRIATE DISPUTE RESOLUTION ("ADR") – TYPE OF PROCESS WANTED

Type of	Brief Description
Process
A: Facilitative on	The partners decide everything together: issues of process as well as substance. The neutral proposes ideas and alternatives
Process & Non-	on procedural issues (e.g., timing, prior submissions, agenda, use of caucuses, meals, etc.) but leaves it to the parties to Evaluative on	choose, working together. He cannot impose anything. The neutral does not give an opinion or make any proposals on Substance	substantive issues. He helps the partners to exchange information and to brainstorm (by focusing on their interests rather than on their positions.) He can suggest techniques for addressing relational and/or social issues as well as assist the partners in generating their own criteria and obtaining external information that can help them overcome impasses (e.g., experts).
B: Directive on	The neutral is responsible for procedural matters (e.g., timing, prior submissions, agenda, use of caucuses, meals etc.) but Process & Non-	does not give opinions or make proposals on substantive issues. He helps the partners to exchange information and to Evaluative on	brainstorm but does not make any proposals on substantive issues. He neips the partners to exchange information and to Substance	regarding ways of addressing social and relational issues as well as ways of seeking external information to assist the parties in Substance	overcoming impasses (e.g., appointing experts and determining the scope of their mandate.) He can help the parties to generate their own norms but does not advise on final solutions or provide a proposal on how the matter could be settled.
C: Facilitative on	The neutral does not control the process but can propose ideas and alternatives to the partners on procedural issues for them
Process &	to decide (e.g., timing, prior submissions, use of caucuses, agenda, etc.) The neutral is expected, however, to form his/her Evaluative on	own views of the matter, and to generate, educate and help the partners in applying possible norms (e.g., findings of fact and
Substance	applicable laws). He helps the parties to identify dispositive issues and to exchange information relevant to these norms (e.g., on positions and assists in "reality-checking"). He helps the partners to find missing information and can suggest ways of resolving keys issues. He can evaluate the strengths and weaknesses of each partner's positions and, when appropriate, provide his own opinion on the merits and/or give non-binding proposals regarding possible ways of settling the dispute.
D : Directive on	The neutral directs all issues of process (e.g., timing, prior submissions, agenda, use of caucuses, meals etc.) as well as the Process &	topics to be discussed. He can set, educate and advocate norms by which the dispute can be resolved. The neutral forms
Evaluative on	his/her own views of the matter, and can apply norms (e.g., findings of fact and applicable laws) to help the partners to Substance.	understand the strengths and weaknesses of their files, and exchange relevant information. He can do "reality-checking" and help the partners to understand what their alternatives to a negotiated agreement may look like (e.g., best case or worst case scenarios). He will identify dispositive issues and propose ways of resolving them. The neutral is expected to provide his opinion (in caucus or in joint session) and to ultimately give a settlement proposal if the parties do not reach an agreement.
	The neutral's proposal is usually non-binding, but can become binding if the parties agree to accept it as a way to resolve any final issues that are preventing them from reaching a settlement.
	man 1990cs that are preventing them nonneadining a settlement.
